FREDERICK COLLEGE

SPARTAN

PUBLISHED ANNUALLY BY THE YEARBOOK STAFF

Frederick College

PORTSMOUTH, VIRGINIA

FREDERICK CO

FOREWORD

In September 1958 two hundred and seventy students came to Frederick College for the first time with great anticipation both for themselves in a new venture and for the college in its new venture. The Students felt that they were to be a very definite part of the history of Frederick College as they were its first students.

Days, weeks and months of planning, hoping and dreaming became a reality on this bright September day. Dormitories had been readied, faculty and staff had arrived, classrooms, cafeteria and all the other phases of the college life were in readiness for this first and important student body.

Frederick College came into being as a result of an idea and a dream of Mr. Fred W. Beazley, a native of Portsmouth, Virginia. To carry out his dream of Mr. Beazley along with his wife Marie C. Beazley and Fred W. Beazley, Jr., established the Beazley Foundation in 1948. One of the expressed purposes of the Foundation was to establish in Portsmouth Frederick College. During the ten years Mr. Beazley, his wife and son gave of their time and talents and money to make it possible for worthy young people to have an education.

It is a tribute to the Beazley family that they have devoted their energies to the creation of a school which will serve and help to mold and develop young men into fine citizens.

President's Message

On September 8, 1959 Frederick College began its second year of operation. As we stood at the beginning of a new year we could look back with some degree of pride to our accomplishments of the year before. At the same time we looked forward to a greater opportunity for service in the future. As we reviewed our first year, we found that the college was dedicated and brought many leading educators and guests to our campus; we found that our first Parents' Day was marked with success; our school was accredited during its first year of operation, which we feel was an outstanding accomplishment; our Military Program was designated as an Honor School during its first year; our Athletic Program was a success. All in all, we felt that we had accomplished a great deal within the short span of one year. We realize, however, that there are many things we want to accomplish in the years ahead.

We feel that during our first year and during the current year a large part of our success has been a result of the efforts of the students. We look with a great deal of pride and satisfaction on the type young man which we have enrolled in our school. Many will go out better prepared to serve in the community in which they will live.

We look forward to many years of service and look backward to a close relationship with the students who graduate year by year. Our main objective will always be to better serve the students who come our way.

Dedication

The 1960 staff of the Spartan dedicate the second annual to Justice Lawrence W. l'Anson, chairman of the board of Trustees for Frederick College. Because it is the yearbook of our college at large, it is only fitting that the Spartan should be dedicated to a man whose selfless interest and quiet example has had such telling effect upon so many of us. His high ideals have inspired us and his dedication to the principles of our college will always inspire us.

Representatives of more than twenty-five academic institutions, garbed in full academic regalia, participate in the dedication procession. They are preceded by two cadet marshals and the college board of trustees.

The Frederick College faculty, also in academic dress are followed by the President, the speakers and ministers who were to take part in the dedication program.

Academic gowns and robes of various degrees presented an atmosphere of solemnity and added to the importance of the occasion.

President Blanchard welcomed the audience to the founding of the "nation's newest college."

The Glee Club sings for the more than 400 guests who attended the program of dedication for our school. Parents of the 252 cadets, then enrolled, attended the program in the auditorium.

Dr. Alvin Duke Chandler, President of the College of William and Mary, presents the major address for the dedication.

Under the direction of the school dietitian, Mrs. Helen Conway, a banquet was prepared for the more than 400 guests, parents and friends, who attended the dedication.

Food and fellowship among friends of the college.

Honor Rating

During our first year Frederick College was awarded an "honor rating." This mark of achievement is worn proudly on the sleeve of each cadet.

An achievement of this type, during the first year of operation, is almost unknown, except at Frederick.

FREDERICK

Frederick College is named in honor and memory of Cadets see, upon entering the lobby of the administration building, the oil portrait of Mr. Beazley.

Faculty

One of the major advantages of Frederick College is the fact that high school and college students alike are taught by college teachers. The major aim of the administration is to secure quality teachers in every department. Almost to the man, each teacher has two or more academic degrees. Living on the campus, each teacher is accessable to the students at all times for help or encouragement or an "understanding ear."

President, Frederick College

With the helpful guidance and advice of Willard J. Blanchard, our President, each student has grown to love and respect him. His day is never too short or is he ever too busy to sit down and council with the students of Frederick.

Orientation

Orientation week saw the enrollment of Frederick College advance to three hundred fifty two students. On opening day old friends met to talk over the events of the summer and new friends were acquired from schools from all over the nation. An air of excitement and anticipation was everywhere as students chose their subjects and courses of study. Room assignments were made, teachers were met, and the orientation for college life begun.

Activities

The extra-curricular activities of Frederick College are designed to promote and develop spiritual, moral, academic, character and leadership potential. Through the Student Government Association, the Key and Circle K, the Christian Student Union, and various other student activities, these traits reach fruition. The intermixture of activities provide the students with a well-rounded college life.

The Spartan

The Spartan, Frederick College yearbook, is published annually by the students of our school. Through the unusually cooperative attitude of the staff and their unselfish efforts, this yearbook was produced. Hundreds of work-hours have been wedged into crowded schedules in order to complete a book of which we can all be proud.

Student Government Association

The S.G.A., established by the students as a self-governing organization has striven to represent effectively and further the best interest of the entire school, and bring about cooperation and efficiency among the various campus organizations.

The S.G.A. this year has put great effort into effecting changes and providing services which will benefit the students and improve our college.

In all its varied activities, the guiding principle of the Student Governing Association, the guiding principle of its affiliated organizations and individual student members is honor. All of our actions are significantly influenced by the spirit of honor, for its scope extends well beyond the written academic and social rules and regulations to foster the spirit of personal honor and individual integrity which are becoming recognized as fundamental at Frederick.

Through the fellowship of its meetings and through many inspirational enterprises. The "Spirit of the C.S.U." has come to permeate and enrich the student's life.

The Frederick Shield is published monthly by the cadets, under the direction of Mr. William Nettles. Articles of campus news are submitted to the staff, headed by Editors George Mallard and Tod Christian. The journalistic work produced by the staff has been excellent and each student looks forward to the arrival of the school newspaper.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club was newly organized on our campus this year with the help and cooperation of the College of William and Mary. The group has as its sponsor, Mr. Preston Doyle, chairman of the Department of History and Political Science, and Cadet Lt. Reggie Hughes as President. The objectives of the club are to promote international understanding through a study of national and international affairs. Debates, talks, movies and slides have aided the group to know the problems of their world neighbors. Each member becomes familiar with the functions of world nations as well as their own national government's functions. "Better world citizens" is the objective of the group.

Key Club

The Key Club is an opportunity for the high school cadets of Frederick College to develop their latent qualities while engaging in the satisfying program of school and community service. As Key Clubbers work, they learn how to give and to take orders and to make decisions quickly. On the basis of information available to them, they learn to stand on their feet in front of people and express their thoughts. In this group we see character develop through responsibility.

Circle K

In the Circle K club activity, Kiwanians have the opportunity to fulfill their objective "to build better communities" by training the youth of today for the leadership they will assume in the near future. It is an opportunity to give direction to the "key" youth of the school. The club, the school and the community are brought closer together; their problems are recognized and concerted action can be planned and directed with the aid of community leaders.

Features

The most outstanding features of the year at Frederick College were the Christmas Military Ball and Mother's Day. Here the Batallion Queen was chosen at the dance held at The Suburban Country Club. Here, also, we honored our Mothers and chose the "Mother of the Year" at Mother's Day ceremonies on the college campus. Around these events was an air of excitement, honor and pleasure throughout the campus.

In Play

Steve Porter makes a pass good for the Lions. The extra effort of players like this made Frederick a winning team.

During the year Coach Tom Mosley whipped the green players into a winning team. Men, who had never played together, were welded into a precision unit, giving the game their all.

The Frederick Lions proved, during the first year of play, that they possessed all of the qualities of football greats: burning dseire, great versatility, heart, and in football lingo, a respected trademark, "guts."

Coach Mosley talks over the maneuvers of the opposition's plays with the players in the locker room at Wilson High School.

Time is called and a new plan of attack is mapped. Quickly Red Fox checks the clock.

Military

The aim of Frederick College has always been to provide a homelike school for those boys who are intrusted for instruction.

In our organization military training does not supercede the homelike influence. Frederick College seeks to combine these two desirable features.

Through military discipline, Frederick seeks to instill in each of its cadets, honor, pride, and traits of good leadership.

A member of the faculty lives in each dormitory, and is always available for consultation and guidance.
